EDUCATION

University of Virginia (2018 – present) • Charlottesville, VA

- PhD (ABD), Slavic Languages & Literatures (expected conferral May 2023)
 - ⌘ Dissertation: A Revolutionary Gospel: Secular Transpositions of Orthodox Narrative and the Post-Christian Coming of the New Soviet Person (1905-1917)
 - Adviser: Edith W. Clowes
 - This dissertation takes a multi-pronged analytical approach to understanding the Orthodox Christian literary tradition of the Bible and hagiographies remade by Maxim Gor'kii surrounding the 1905 revolution. A traditional humanistic close reading of his prose and drama from 1892 to 1917 argues for thematic and structural influence from traditional Christian narrative before finding echoes of his ideological style in other revolutionary writers before the arrival of the February and October Revolutions.
 - ⌘ Candidate, Digital Humanities Doctoral Certificate
 - A digital project complements the dissertation project with a quantitative analysis using Natural Language Processing and Data Science methods to isolate Gor'kii's approach toward characterization.
- Masters of Arts, Slavic Languages & Literatures (May 2020)

University of Arizona (2011 – 2015) • Tucson, AZ
